MCA Talk

Following the performance, audience members are invited to stay for a moderated Q & A with Gisèle Vienne and Lars Frank.

Thanks to the students and the faculty coordinators of the Theater Foundations Course (TFC), housed in Columbia College Chicago Theatre Department. With an international focus, TFC develops programs that explore the individual as creator within the context of original work and devised performance.

Earlier this week, Gisèle Vienne and puppeteers of Ensemble Puppentheater Halle led a master class for undergraduate visual art students and theater professionals, hosted at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago.

ABOUT THE ARTISTS

GISÈLE VIENNE

She collaborates regularly with a number of artists, including the writers Dennis Cooper and Catherine Robbe-Grillet, the musicians Peter Rehberg and Stephen O’Malley, lighting designer Patrick Riou, and the actor Jonathan Capdevielle. Since 2004, she has choreographed and directed, in collaboration with the writer Dennis Cooper, I Apologize (2004) and Une belle enfant blonde/A Young, Beautiful Blond Girl (2005), Kindertotenlieder (2007) and Jerk, a radioplay in the framework of the “atelier de creation radiophonique” of France Culture (June 2007), the play Jerk (2008), This is how you will disappear (2010), LAST SPRING: A Prequel (2011), and The Pyre (2013). In 2009, she created Eternelleidole in collaboration with an ice skater and an actor, and rewrote Showroomdummies with Etienne Bideau-Rey. The same year she rewrote Showroomdummies a second time with Etienne Bideau-Rey, returning to rewrite it in 2013 for CCN-Ballet de Lorraine.

Since 2005, Vienne’s photographs and installations have been regularly exhibited.

With Dennis Cooper, Peter Rehberg, and Jonathan Capdevielle, Vienne published an audio book in French and English: JERK/Through Their Tears (published by DIS VOIR). She also published the book 40 PORTRAITS 2003-2008, in collaboration with Dennis Cooper and Pierre Dourthe (published by P.O.L). Her collaboration with the Puppentheater Halle is among her works in progress, which include an exhibition at the Centre d’Art Contemporain in Geneva that opened September 2015, a forthcoming exhibition at the FRAC Alsace for 2016, and an interpretation of Blue Beard’s Castle by Béla Bartok for La Monnaie-Brussels for 2017. THE PUPPENTHEATER HALLE was founded in 1954 and restructured in 1995 by Christoph Werner, the current managing director, as a group of eight permanent puppeteers and as part of the TheaterOper und Orchester GmbH Halle in what was formerly East Germany. The individual members have all trained at the theater school Hochschule für Schauspielkunst “Ernst Busch” in Berlin. Some of them are also directors, educators, and puppet makers. The Puppentheater Halle artists use literature or an idea as the start of a creation, which they develop through improvisation. Each work in their four-to-six productions per season focuses on a specific theme and is often created as a coproduction with theaters or festivals, such as the Wiener Festwochen, Schauspielhaus-Köln, Staatstheater-Stuttgart, or Volksbühne-Berlin. Their 2009–10 collaboration with Joël Pommerat was supported by the Kulturstiftung des Bundes (the cultural institution of the Federal State) with the Wanderlust fund.

The Puppentheater Halle creates adaptations of children’s books written for kids between the ages five and twelve and literature for adults that are seen by more than 20,000 attendees each season. The ensemble has toured Canada and India and throughout Germany for festivals such as the Berlin Children’s and Youth Theatre “Augenblick mal!” Their productions Kannst du pfeifen Johanna (Can You Whistle, Johanna) (1999) and Die Schöne und das Biest (Beauty and the Beast) (2002) won the Traumspiele Festival Award of North-Rhine/Westphalia and were broadcast on the German television station ZDF. Much of the Puppentheater Halle work is interdisciplinary; their collaboration with the independent group Nico and the Navigators resulted in Shakespeare Sonnette. Their production KonzertfüreinetaubeSeele, directed by Christoph Werner, featured pianist Ragna Schirmer performing Maurice Ravel, was recorded by ARTE, and was broadcast in April 2014 for the sixtieth birthday of the Puppentheater Halle.
