Lead support for the eighth blackbird residency is provided by Helen and Sam Zell. Additional generous support is provided by the National Endowment for the Arts, Anne L. Murder Ballades was commissioned by eighth blackbird and Lunapark and was funded by The Doelen Concert Hall, Rotterdam; Muziekgebouw aan ’t IJ, Amsterdam; and Muziekgebouw Frits Philips, Eindhoven, with the financial support of The Van Beinum Foundation, the Netherlands, and with additional support from the Museum of Contemporary Art Chicago.

GHOSTLIGHT was commissioned for eighth blackbird by the Abe Fortas Memorial Fund of The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.
eighth blackbird is ensemble-in-residence with Contempo at the University of Chicago and the artists-in-residence at the Museum of Contemporary Art Chicago for the 2015-16 season.

Nathalie Joachim is a Burkart Flutes & Piccolos Artist. Michael J. Maccaferri is a D’Addario Woodwinds Artist. When eighth blackbird asked me for a piece, I immediately knew what to do: let great American folk music inspire a great American new-music ensemble. The murder ballad has its roots in a European tradition, in which grisly details of bloody homicides are recounted through song. When this tradition came to America, it developed its own vernacular, with stories and songs that were told and retold over generations.

In Murder Ballades, I reexamine several of these old songs, allowing them to inspire my own music. “Omie Wise,” “Young Emily,” “Pretty Polly,” and “Down in the Willow Garden” are classic murder ballads, tales of romantically charged killings that are based on real events. “Hocket,” “Dark Holler,” “Lewisburg,” and “Underneath the Floorboards” are my own compositions, of which “Dark Holler” is loosely modeled on the clawhammer banjo style that would have accompanied many of these early folk songs. “Brushy Fork” is a Civil War-era murder ballad/fiddle tune, and “Wave the Sea” and “Tears for Sister Polly” are original compositions woven in the depths of the many months I spent inhabiting the seductive music and violent stories of these murder ballads.

–Bryce Dessner

A ghost light shining in a darkened theater has always struck me as a symbol of both the mysteries of the unknown and the possibility of the sacred. The ghost light itself is, of course, connected with a sense of the supernatural in the superstitions of the theater. For example, one thought regarding the term’s origins is this: since every theater has its own ghost, the light is placed on stage as a kind of offering, allowing the ghost(s) a chance to play upon the stage in exchange for the safety of the theater and its actors. Yet, to me, the ghost light has always felt more sacred than spooky; the setting is for a ritual, or is a kind of shrine, where an eternal flame burns, honoring the age and sanctity of the Theater, with its direct lines back to the ancient Greeks and their gods, rituals, and magic. Ghostlight was inspired by this sense of ancient ritual and the mysteries that lie within it.

Like many works by the artists to whom each movement is dedicated—Leonora Carrington, Remedios Varo, Anne Waldman, and Lou Harrison—Ghostlight is a self-contained journey, first inward, then out. It begins with the calm of a summer dusk, then gradually grows darker, as it travels into murkier and stranger
I think the combination of age and a greater coming together is responsible for the speed of the passing time. It’s six months now, and I can tell you truthfully few periods in my life have passed so quickly. I am in excellent physical and emotional health. There are doubtless subtle surprises ahead, but I feel secure and ready. As lovers will contrast their emotions in times of crisis, so am I dealing with my environment. In the indifferent brutality, the incessant noise, the experimental chemistry of food, the ravings of lost hysterical men, I can act with clarity and meaning. I am deliberate, sometimes even calculating, seldom employing histrionics, except as a test of the reactions of others. I read much, exercise, talk to guards and inmates, feeling for the inevitable direction of my life.

As I read it, I was impressed both by the poetic quality of the text and by its cryptic irony. I read it over and over again. It seemed that I was trying to capture a sense of the physical presence of the writer and, at the same time, to unlock a hidden meaning from the simple but ambiguous language. The act of reading and rereading finally led me to the idea of its musical treatment.

—Frederic Rzewski

SONGS

The original music of singer-songwriter William Oldham has been linked to Americana, folk, roots, country, punk, and indie rock. He describes his work as “Appalachian post-punk solipsist.” He is also known as Bonnie “Prince” Billy, the name he has used for most of his musical output since 1998. Oldham explains his numerous monikers—including Palace Brothers, Palace Songs, Palace Music, and others—offering insight into his performance ethos: “I thought it would be better if there was sort of an implied character. Somebody that people could live with. If they had the record in their house, they could feel 100 percent comfortable about living with that person. I just mean that when they hear the voice, they’re allowed to disassociate it from the life—the lives—of the singer. Hopefully, people identify the songs with themselves, and not with the singer.”

Ghostlight is dedicated to the current and former members of eighth blackbird.

—David T. Little

COMING TOGETHER

I wrote Coming Together in November and December of 1971 in response to a historical event; in September of that year, inmates at the state prison in Attica, New York, revolted and succeeded in taking possession of a part of the institution. Foremost among their demands was the recognition of their right to be treated as human beings. After several days of fruitless negotiations, Governor Nelson Rockefeller ordered state police to retake the prison by force, justifying his action on the grounds that the lives of the guards whom prisoners had taken as hostages were in danger. In the ensuing violence, forty-three persons, including several of the hostages, were killed and many more were wounded. One of the dead was Sam Melville, a prisoner who had played a significant role in organizing the rebellion. In the spring of 1971, Melville had written a letter to a friend describing his experience of the passage of time in prison. After his death, the letter was published in the magazine Ramparts:

I think the combination of age and a greater coming together is responsible for the speed of the passing time. It’s six months now, and I can tell you truthfully few periods in my life have passed so quickly. I am in excellent physical and emotional health. There are doubtless subtle surprises ahead, but I feel secure and ready. As lovers will contrast their emotions in times of crisis, so am I dealing with my environment. BRYCE DESSNER is one of the most sought-after composers of his generation, with a rapidly expanding catalogue of works commissioned by leading ensembles. His orchestral, chamber, and vocal compositions have been commissioned by the Los Angeles Philharmonic, Metropolitan Museum of Art (for the New York Philharmonic), Kronos Quartet, BAM Next Wave Festival, Barbican Centre, Edinburgh International Festival, Sydney Festival, eighth blackbird, Sō Percussion, New York City Ballet, and many others. Recently Dessner was invited to compose music for Alejandro González Iñárritu’s film The Revenant, which received a 2016 Golden Globe nomination for Best Original Score. His recordings include Aheym, a Kronos Quartet disc devoted to his music (Anti-); St. Carolyn by the Sea on Deutsche Grammophon, with the Copenhagen Phil under Andre de Ridder; and Music for Wood and Strings, an album-length work performed by Sō Percussion (Brassland). Dessner’s music is marked by a keen sensitivity to instrumental color and texture. He earned his bachelor’s and master’s degrees from Yale University. Dessner formed the instrumental quartet Clogs and in 2001, cofounded the critically acclaimed, Grammy Award-nominated band The National.

DAVID T. LITTLE is one of the most imaginative young composers on the scene. His operas Soldier Songs (Prototype Festival) and Dog Days (Peak Performances/Beth Morrison Projects) have been widely acclaimed. His recent and upcoming works include AGENCY (Kronos Quartet), CHARM (Baltimore Symphony/Marin Alsop), Hellhound (Maya Beiser), Haunt of Last Nightfall (Third Coast Percussion), the opera JFK with Royce Vavrek (Fort Worth Opera/American Lyric Theater), a new opera commissioned by the MET Opera/Lincoln Center Theater new works program, and the music-theatre work Artaud in the Black Lodge with Outrider legend Anne Waldman (Beth Morrison Projects). His music has been heard at Carnegie Hall, LA Opera, the Park Avenue Armory, the Bang On A Can Marathon, and elsewhere. Educated at University of Michigan and Princeton, Little is cofounder of the annual New Music Bake Sale, has served as executive director of MATA, serves on the Composition Faculty at Mannes-The New School and Shenandoah Conservatory, and is Composer-in-Residence with Opera Philadelphia and Music-Theatre Group. The founding artistic director of the ensemble Newspeak, his music can be heard on New Amsterdam and Innova labels. He is published by Boosey & Hawkes.

MATTHEW OZAWA spans multiple artistic disciplines in his work, notably having worked for Lyric Opera of Chicago, Oregon Shakespeare Festival, Canadian Opera Company, San Francisco Opera, Santa Fe Opera, the Macau International Festival, and Opera Siam. He has collaborated with artists Peter Sellars, Francesca Zambello, Rob Ashford, Meredith Monk, and Isaac Mizrahi. Ozawa’s recent directing credits include Arizona Lady (North American premiere, Arizona Opera), Matt Aucoin’s Second Nature (world premiere, Lyric Unlimited), Tsuru (world premiere, Houston Ballet/Asia Society), Y Portraits (world premiere art gallery event, Mazawa), Porcelain (Prologue Theatre Company), Snow Dragon (world premiere, Skylight Music Theater/Opera Siam), Fallen (world premiere, Mazawa), Les mamelles de Tirésias/Le Pauvre Matelot (new production, Wolf Trap Opera), A Little Night Music (Houston Grand Opera) and The Memory Stone (world premiere, Houston Grand Opera). Upcoming directing credits include Nabucco (Lyric Opera of Chicago) and The Roof of the Wind is Water (Houston Grand Opera). Among Ozawa’s numerous awards are a 2007 directing and a 2008 dramaturgy fellowship with Oregon Shakespeare Festival, and the James S. McLaughlin Memorial Prize in Theater for his work at Oberlin. He is founder and artistic director of the performing arts company Mozawa.

FREDERIC RZEWKSI was born in Westfield, Massachusetts, in 1938. He studied with Charles Mackey, Walter Piston, Roger Sessions, Milton Babbitt, and Luigi Dallapiccola. His compositional career has had many phases: his music from the late sixties and early seventies (Les Moutons de Panurge and Coming Together) combines elements of written and improvised music, which in the seventies led to a greater experimentation with forms that treated style and language as structural elements (The People United Will Never Be Defeated). He briefly returned to experimental and graphic notation (Le Silence des Espaces Infinis and The Price of Oil) before exploring new uses of the twelve-tone technique in the eighties (Antigone-Legend, The Persians). Rzewski adopts a freer and spontaneous approach to his more recent work. eighth blackbird commissioned Frederic Rzewski to write two pieces: Pocket Symphony (2001) for sextet, and Knight, Death and Devil (2008) for sextet and string quartet.

EIGHTH BLACKBIRD is a four-time Grammy Award-winning sextet celebrating its twentieth year in the 2015–16 season. It formed in 1996 as a group of six entrepreneurial Oberlin Conservatory students, who quickly became known for performing from memory, often employing choreography, and frequently collaborating with artists across multiple disciplines and genres in an effort to create visually compelling musical experiences.

The sextet has commissioned and premiered hundreds of works by dozens of composers, including David T. Little, Steven Mackey, Missy Mazzoli, and Steve Reich, whose commissioned work Double Sextet (2007) went on to win the 2009 Pulitzer Prize. Their long-term relationship with Chicago’s Cedille Records has produced seven acclaimed recordings, including four Grammy Awards for strang, imaginary animals (2008), Lonely Motel: Music from Slide (2011), Meanwhile (2013), and Filament (2016).

Eighth blackbird’s mission extends beyond performance to curation and education. The group served as music director of the Ojai Music Festival (2009), enjoyed a three-year residency at the Curtis Institute of Music, and holds ongoing ensemble-in-residence positions at the University of Richmond and the University of Chicago.

Highlights of the 2015–16 season include the MCA’s Artist in Residence program, debut performances in Poland and with the Philadelphia Chamber Music Society, and the ensemble’s awaited return to Carnegie’s Zankel Hall, The Kennedy Center, the Philadelphia Orchestra, and the Philharmonic Society of Orange County. eighth blackbird’s members hail from the Great Lakes, Keystone, Golden, Empire, and Bay states. The ensemble’s name derives from the eighth stanza of Wallace Stevens’s evocative, aphoristic poem, “Thirteen Ways of Looking at a Blackbird” (1917). eighth blackbird is managed by David Lieberman Artists.
