Touring support for Rainpan 43: Elephant Room was made possible by the New England Foundation for the Arts’ National Theater Project, with lead funding from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation.

As part of the Chicago Humanities Festival, generous underwriting for Elephant Room is provided by Elaine and Roger Haydock.

Elephant Room was commissioned by Center Theatre Group in Los Angeles, California, and coproduced by Arena Stage, Washington DC (Molly Smith, Artistic Director), and Edgar Dobie, Executive Producer), and the Philadelphia Live Arts Festival. Elephant Room is funded in part by the Creative Capital Foundation, the Pew Center for Arts & Heritage through the Philadelphia Theatre Initiative, and the New England Foundation for the Arts’ National Theater Pilot, with lead funding from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation. Additional support was provided by Hunter College Department of Theatre and the Live Arts Brewery (LAB) programs, which are supported by the Kresge Foundation, the Independence Foundation, and the PNC Foundation through PNC Arts Alive.
Welcome

It is our tremendous pleasure to present a highlight of the fall season for both MCA Stage and the Chicago Humanities Festival.

Each year, we strive to highlight distinctive artists whose visions reflect and refract the annual theme of the Festival. In recent years, MCA Stage and the Chicago Humanities Festival have collaborated to bring forward memorable performances by Big Dance Theater, Liz Lerman/Dance Exchange, and Mike Daisey, just to name a few.

The current theme of Animal: What Makes Us Human has been especially stimulating, and so this year we are expanding by copresenting two intriguing projects. First, Elephant Room is a feat of misdirection. What seems to be an off-the-wall magic show turns out to be experimental theater fueled by our imaginations and our unwitting suspension of disbelief. Along the way, we are drawn into a secret society located at a point in the space-time continuum somewhere between baroque nostalgia and Paterson, New Jersey.

White Rabbit, Red Rabbit is an entirely different animal. Iranian playwright Nassim Soleimanpour refused his country’s mandatory military service as a conscientious objector and was therefore refused a passport for international travel. His experience is that of many in his generation—computer literate and well informed, but living within parameters circumscribed by the Islamic Republic. Created to travel the world when he can’t, his play requires no director or set, and each performance features a different actor who receives the script for the first time he or she takes the stage.

Dramatically distinct, these two works prompt us to explore what distinguishes the human animal from others. Both Elephant Room and White Rabbit, Red Rabbit explore creativity and self-awareness.

From the creators

Hello, audience member.

Hey. You came to the show! Good for you! You took the time, you figured it out, you had a meal, and walked right through that door to get your mind waxed. Phew! Now you can really just take a breath and sink deep into this slightly awkward, well-loved, plushy red chair. You’re here. And look—other people are here, too. Look around at those people. Who are they? Maybe your eyes light on someone. Maybe you know them, maybe not. And now—just stare at them. Keep doing it—it’s good—do it for longer than would be comfortable in a regular “staring situation.” Look intensely at them until they notice you, and then, why not—just keep staring. Wink if you wish. Maybe they’ll laugh and point to the program, thinking that you read this little mes-sage—no matter the case, just slowly shake your head darkly and narrow your eyes. Then, from the corners of your mouth, creep into a shady smile and cock your head to one side. Now, in a low, sure tone, say simply: “You don’t know who I am, do you?” No matter what they say, just continue, “It’s a secret . . .”

Welcome to the elephant room . . .
An Interview with the Magicians

Earlier this summer, Peter Taub, Director of Performance Programs at MCA Chicago, visited Daryl Hannah and Louie Magic in New York. The following is excerpted from their conversation.

Peter Taub: Tell us how you got into magic.

Louie Magic: I got started in magic when I was a little kid, about ten years old. It became at first a hobby and then it became my passion and now I'm a resident magician at Dazzles out in Paterson, New Jersey.

Daryl Hannah: He's great. If you're ever on vacation visiting Paterson, New Jersey, you gotta go to Dazzles.

LM: I do stand-up comedy magic generally. Daryl does a lot of bird magic. Dennis does mentalism magic and we've gotten to know each other over the years through the magic circuit. You know, there's a lot of magic conventions. Society of American Magicians, International Brotherhood of Magicians, Fédération Internationale Sociétés Magiques. That's the European one.

DH: Yeah, I'm not a member of that one. That one's more expensive.

LM: Over the years, we saw each other's work and we realized we'd have something unique if we teamed up. There are no trio magician troupes.

DH: They don't exist. Think about it. You got Siegfried and Roy, duo. You've got Penn and Teller. I was going to say Daryl Hall and John Oates, but they're not magicians.

LM: So, we thought, here's the time.

DH: Unless—does Chicago have any trio magicians?

LM: No. But Chicago has a rich history of magic. A lot of people don't know it. Ed Marlo, one of the greatest sleight-of-hand guys.

PT: What types of magic will you do in the show?

LM: Magic tricks are a tricky thing where you don't want to reveal too much, but let me say this: You'll come to our show, Elephant Room. You will walk in. You will see the world that we've created—you see our set. Then the mystery begins. We start with some small illusions, small things with our hands to draw the audience in. That's you. Next thing you know, you're on the edge of your seat, your breath starts to get quicker, and you have this sudden feeling of, what's going to happen next? And that's the place we want to get you. And that's the place we bring you.

DH: Yeah, totally. Totally. And there's also good dancing. We also have card tricks. But, you know what? There's also good fun.

LM: It's good fun. Because we just want to share the world with you guys. Magic has been very good to us over the years. People ask us all the time, what is magic? Is it a trick? It's an ancient art of seduction and manipulation.

LM: Right. In the laws of magic, anything is possible and that's what you, too, can learn at Elephant Room.
Dennis Diamond has devoted his life to perfecting the art of mystery since he was a tender youngling. Years of research, collaboration, and invention have won him the accolades of fans and peers. Dennis served as conjuror on Carnival Cruise Lines and Celebrity Cruises, touring almost all over the world, and performed extensively in Atlantic City and Las Vegas. He’s appeared on NBC’s World’s Greatest Magic, Late Show with David Letterman, and hosted his own special on Animal Planet. Dennis was lucky enough to work closely with previous National President John Zweers and John Engman of Society of American Magicians Hall of Fame and Magic Museum, before it was flooded. His book, Dennis Diamond: The Black Canopy, is available by private order, and he is available for bookings at modernwarlock@gmail.com.

Louie Magic has been performing magic since he was ten years old, when he got his first magic kit from a local toy store. For the next fifteen years, Louie has been the resident magician at Dazzles, Peterson’s (NJ) only magic nightclub and bar. He is an expert in sleight-of-hand and close-up illusions. As a master of the art of astonishment, Louie has crossed the country, “dazzling” the likes of such celebrities as Ellen DeGeneres and Tom Brady (football star). Louie created the number-one selling item at Magic Trick Shoppe Online: The Louie Magic Magic Deck. For only five bucks, anyone can look like a sleight-of-hand expert! All inquiries can be sent to louiemagic89@gmail.com.

Daryl Hannah has been doing magic for over six-and-a-half years at venues across the country and internationally (such as Rosario’s Casa del Magikio Grande). While touring with a premier salsa band, Daryl was exposed to Native American medicine men. Previously known as Daryl Hannah: Master of Birds, he has developed a unique blend of Native medicine rituals and contemporary illusion. Daryl is ambassador for the Chahawve outreach program and educates children in poetry and judo (he is a third-degree brown belt.) Based in Tucson, Arizona, he’s received two Desert StandOut Awards and an honorary degree from Westlake Community College. For bookings, visit www.elephantroom.biz. He is available as rock band opening act, corporate/spiritual trainer/guide, and magic consultant. He would like to thank, as always, Dawn and Montana.

Steve Cuffo creates performance, art, theater, and magic. His solo and collaborative magician work incorporates aspects of sleight-of-hand, misdirection, imitation and reenactment. Theater credits include Spirit Wife (with Eleanor Hutchins), Steve Cuffo is Lenny Bruce (Done Lenny Done by “Carneyhold Hall” (St. Ann’s Warehouse), North Atlantic (Wooster Group), Next Stop: Amazingland (Center Theatre Group), Digital Effects (Off The Grid), Hell Meets Henry Hathaway (Pig Iron Theatre), Fluke (Radioholo), Major Bang (Foundry Theater), Steve Cuffo is Lenny Bruce (Joe’s Pub), Rinnie Goff’s Orange, Lemon, Egg, Canary (P.S. 122), Lypinska’s The Passion of the Crawford, Patriot Act — A Public Meditation (New York Theatre Workshop), Ghostlight—work in progress (NYTW Dartmouth Residency), The Amazing Russello Magic Hour (Joe’s Pub/Public Theater), The Roaring Girls (Foundry Theatre), Brace Up! He is on the Board of Directors for the Conjuring Arts Research Center in New York.

Trey Lyford is Co-Artistic Director of Rainpan 43 performance group. He has cocreated and performed in all of their works to date. Rainpan 43’s inaugural work, all wear bowlers (2005 Drama Desk Nomination, Innovative Theatre Award), toured the world. Additional works include Amnesia Curiosa (2006) and the OBIE Award–winning kinetic junk-sculpture play machines machines machines machines machines machines machines machines. In addition to his pieces with Rainpan 43, Lyford develops and produces works as an individual artist and is an Associate Artist with the celebrated company The Civilians (One Missed Call, Paris Commune, Nobody’s Lunch, The Great Immensity). Lyford has performed his original works on four continents, as well as Philadelphia Live Arts Festival, Los Angeles’s Center Theatre Group, La Jolla Playhouse, Berkeley Rep, Studio Theater, and theaters throughout New York. He is a Princess Grace Award recipient as well as the Faberge Theatre Excellence Award. His work has received support from NYSCA, Princeton Atelier, and Creative Capital. Lyford is a professor at Stanford University, and trained in physical theater at Ecole Jacques Lecoq in Paris.

Poul Lazar co-founded the Besseis and Obie Award–winning Big Dance Theater in 1991 with Annie-B Parson and Molly Hickok. His work with Big Dance includes conceiving, directing, and/or performing in works such as Supernatural Wife (BAM, 2011); Coume Toujours Here I Stand (The Kitchen, 2010, as well as MCA Stage); Plan B (Japan Society, 2009); and Mac Wellman’s Antigone (Classic Stage Company, 2004, and also at MCA Stage). Lazar is director of Young Jean Lee’s We’re Gonna Die. He is director for Hartford Stage of Baryshnikov Producers’ Man in a Case, which will appear at MCA Stage in May 2014. He and Annie-B Parson are currently working Alan Smithee Directed This Play, which opens in Lyon, France, in the spring of 2014 and at the BAM Harvey in fall 2014. He has performed in The Wooster Group’s North Atlantic, Brace machines machines machines machines machines machines machines machines machines machines machines machines machines...

As of October 2013
As one of the nation’s largest multidisciplinary museums devoted to the art of our time, the Museum of Contemporary Art Chicago offers exhibitions of the most thought-provoking art of today. The museum’s performing arts program, MCA Stage, is the most active presenter of theater, dance, and music in Chicago, featuring leading performers from around the globe in the 300-seat Edlis Neeson Theater.

MCA Stage is committed to presenting groundbreaking performances that focus on collaboration; working closely with artists; converging with the larger programming of the museum; and offering a contemporary view of the traditional roots of performance.
